

Go As We Are

The first thing you notice about the Oak Bluffs Tabernacle is not the Eiffel-style iron or the stained glass windows.

It's not the surrounding ancient oaks, candy-colored cottages or swaths of lawn with kids playing about.

It's not the buzz of laughter, stories, and song spilling out at all hours, day and evening.

The first thing you notice about the Tabernacle is there are no walls. No doors either. No difference between what's in and what's out.

Just a great wide open, sweeping and generous no matter who you are or why you've come that says welcome, take a load off, stay awhile.
